

M'CLELLAND TELLS OF BAPTIZING SHIP TULSA

Hundreds Looked On As Miss Crobie Broke Bottle of Crude Oil Over Bow of Steamer

BANQUET FOR TULSA GIRL

Sudden illness kept Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Crobie from attending ceremony—To-morrow is 7,800

"The trip was wonderful," Crobie said, "and we had a fine time up there, but it was too hot to sleep at night and when I finally wished I was back in dear old Tulsa again, was the wish of Mr. McClelland, chairman of the committee of arrangements, to have the steamer go to New York Philadelphia and return back to the launching of the new steamer "Tulsa" upon her return home yesterday."

"Miss Crobie made a great hit in New York and particularly with the officials of the Hug Island ship yards, who were unanimous in declaring her the prettiest, as well as the most charming girl that ever graced a ship at those dry docks."

"Tulsa seemed to be pretty well known in that locality, but arrangements were made for the launching of our ship. Hug Island was a great attraction to me. We stood upon the high spruce-like stairs just as the name "Whale" was given, it looked like a great oil painting out of the gate. There were Indian employees in the yards and only one girl, and it took 30 minutes for them to get out."

"There was but one mishap to mar the success of the event and that was the inability of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Crobie, parents of the sponsor, to be present due to Mr. Crobie's sudden illness. At least 30 Tulsans were in the party, however, and things went off splendidly.

7,800-Ton Vessel

"A surprise in store for me was the size of the steamer, 7,800 tons, when only a 5,000-ton ship was promised us. Painted a subdued ocean blue, that blended perfectly with the sea and with the steel fittings. "Tulsa" standing out in white against the dark hull of the ship, fully rigged, even to the small stacks and mast ready for her first voyage, was an impressive sight."

"A bush fell over the party when Miss Crobie took the bottle and drew it back, while an involuntary clutch to keep our Sunday best from getting spattered, went the rounds when she crashed the glass against the steel side in the baptismal ceremony. We were in luck, however, and not a drop of the familiar stain marred our finery."

Banquet for Miss Crobie

"A perfectly arranged luncheon party was given Miss Crobie after the christening by officials of the American International Shipping corporation and the United States shipping board on the roof garden of the Hix-Carlton hotel. Friends of the family and former Atlantic summerers at Long Island, Atlantic City and other seaport resorts were present, among them Mrs. Cornill and daughter, Miss Kathryn of Tulsa, now residing in Philadelphia. Congressman and Mrs. E. H. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Leonard, Major and Mrs. C. F. Hopkins, Glenn Dickinson, J. M. Brush, now manager of the Hug Island shipping yard, and Fred L. Levy, manager of the railroad transportation of Hog Island, formerly vice-president and manager of the Wilson at Tulsa, and about a dozen Tulsans and ex-Tulsans whose names I do not remember."

NEW BAPTIST HOSPITAL AT MIAMI IS DEDICATED

The third Baptist hospital in the state, a new $100,000 structure endowed by James B. Robinson, was dedicated at Miami Sunday afternoon with Rev. F. M. McConnell, secretary for the Baptist general convention of Oklahoma delivering the dedication address. J. C. Stalcup was installed as superintendent of the new hospital.

Howard Berry, Famous Gridiron Star and Track Champion, to Marry Soon

Howard Berry and Edith Roger.

Edwards Strikes Oil, Will Finish Building, Is Report

O. W. Edwards, according to unconfirmed information, has struck oil and is to finish his theater building on Fourth between Boston and Main, beginning work within 30 days.

The reporter asked Edwards Monday through a man who has been closely associated with Edwards in the construction of the building that work on the theater is to be started soon. Edwards, it is said, struck a $50 and a 175-barrel well during the past few days and will soon be in a position to finish his building after it has been released from litigation.

The Edwards theater building was begun some time ago. After considerable progress had been

LABOR SHORTAGE HOLDS BACK TULSA BUILDING

Scorching Tulsa Gets Relief From Sun for Few Minutes Monday

The present labor conditions and labor shortage is holding back one project in Tulsa and has forced the proponent of another to abandon his plans for the present.

The proposed extension of the Exchange National bank to give the local financial institution the largest job in the state, has been deferred, according to officials, until the labor situation has clarified. Plans of the extension are under consideration, but there has been no date set for beginning work.

Fred Shaw, local oil man and one-time paving contractor and motor salesman of Tulsa, was for some time considering the organization of a paving company here. Shaw, however, was discouraged by the labor outlook and decided not to enter the field at present.

The last rain fell on July 2, seemingly one last short respite before the town went dry for good, drenching 14 or an inch during the day, the only rainfall in the month of July up until yesterday's shower.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

The last rain fell on July 2, seemingly one last short respite before the town went dry for good, drenching 14 or an inch during the day, the only rainfall in the month of July up until yesterday's shower.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

The last rain fell on July 2, seemingly one last short respite before the town went dry for good, drenching 14 or an inch during the day, the only rainfall in the month of July up until yesterday's shower.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.

It drizzles, drizzle, splatter, splash!

And Tulsa's dry spell was over for the first time in 25 days rain fell in Tulsa, lasting for 15 minutes of steady downpour before the sun peeked out again to steam things up.

The second time since the ill-fated 1st of July, Tulsa's thirst was relieved and her real bone dry period interfered with, only 3½ inches of rain fell, but it splashed down gratefully received by parched tongues and dusty streets.